

Here's the rest of the story.

You might have seen a recent advertisement in this newspaper from a group that is critical of the Chiropractic profession.

As the late Paul Harvey used to say, "here's the rest of the story."

The simple fact is, Connecticut's Chiropractic Physicians are dedicated to their patients and to delivering high-quality health care services.

Nothing will ever change that.

It's time for some fair play.

Connecticut's Chiropractic Physicians make it a routine practice to talk with patients about the benefits and risks of all treatments.

We'll continue to do so.

But a bill has been proposed in the General Assembly (Senate Bill 90) that would require new rules and patient notices from just Chiropractic Physicians — and no one else.

That's not fair. In fact, it's wrong to single us out like that.

Chiropractic care works for patients.

Learn the facts about Chiropractic.

In the meantime, count on us to continue serving the needs of our patients throughout Connecticut.

That's the rest of the story.
